

Dementia: Action needed now

Support the New Democrat plan

Petition for action on dementia

We, the undersigned residents of Canada, draw the attention of the Government of Canada to the following:

THAT over the next 25 years, the number of Canadians living with dementia-related disorders like Alzheimer's will more than double, with costs to our country expected to rise to $292-billion;

THAT instead of working with provinces to improve and modernize care for dementia sufferers, Stephen Harper's Conservatives are planning to cut $36-billion from health transfers;

THAT New Democrats have a plan to increase funding for dementia research; promote earlier diagnosis and intervention; better integrate primary, home and community care; enhance training for the dementia workforce; and improve support for caregivers;

THEREFORE, we call on the Government of Canada to implement the NDP's plan to reduce the burden of dementia and to support more people with the disease across Canada.
